

Extended master's programmes 2025

Extended master's programmes

London Metropolitan University extended master's programmes are designed to help international students to acquire, develop and demonstrate the skills required to successfully undertake postgraduate study in their chosen field.

Our extended master's programmes begin with a 15-week Pre-master's Programme (PMP) on the main campus of London Metropolitan University followed by a one-year full-time principal master's degree.

Pre-master's Programme

The Pre-master's Programme has been specifically designed to enhance international students' skills and knowledge of UK higher education in preparation for their chosen field of study at London Metropolitan University. More specifically, the Pre-master's Programme will help you to:

- develop knowledge of your chosen subject area and prepare for postgraduate study in the UK
- identify and develop research skills to support your study at master's level
- improve your self-management and personal awareness qualities needed by independent and reflective learners
- develop the ability to apply critical thinking skills to the understanding of unfamiliar environments
- enhance English language skills for successful academic study at master's level through the acquisition of advanced academic skills

Course structure

The Pre-master's Programme contains one module:
Academic Preparation Programme (APP3) (60 credits)

This module focuses on the following skills:

- Academic Reading
- Academic Listening
- Academic Writing Theory and Practice
- Research Skills
- Academic Speaking and Presentations
- Academic Grammar in Context

After completing the PMP, international students will join the master's programme in their preferred area of study at London Metropolitan University.
